ENGLISH IN MALTA

The Island of Malta is situated between Sicily and the coast of North Africa. The sun shines the whole year round on its North African-like landscape. Malta has a diverse culture, and has played a greater role in history and international politics, than most of the other islands on earth. The Phoenicians, the Romans, the French and the British have all come and gone.

Today Malta remains one of the most Catholic countries in the world; nowhere else are there so many religious holidays or so many churches per square mile. However, what makes Malta so interesting for a language course is the legacy left behind by the British, who needed the island for its strategic geographical position, well into the 1960s.

FRENCH IN NICE

Nice is more than simply the capital of the Côte D'Azur, it's the fifth largest town in France, a chic and flirtatious coastal resort with a backdrop of wealth and fine architecture. Located on the Mediterranean coast, the city boasts a plethora of ruins, museums, boutiques, and an appealing French café culture. Cafés occupy weathered 17th and 18th century buildings, while outdoor markets crowd the old town's streets and Venetian-style squares. Like most of the Riviera, Nice has a lively nightlife and the old city stays open until the early hours of the morning. The jazz festival in July attracts famous international artists such as James Brown, Winston and Branford Marsalis, Michel Petrucciani, among others.

ITALIAN IN CALABRIA

Calabria, generally thought of as a maritime region, is actually an elongated peninsula with some 800 km of mostly mountainous coastline. Overlooking the clear waters of the Mediterranean, Capo Vaticano is known for its natural scenic beauty, beaches and far-reaching history. Tropea, the most well-known town in the area, is only a short leap away from Capo Vaticano and known for its archaeological past, modern-day harbour and rustic houses built on cliff terraces. The cape is regarded as a secret haven among surfers, sailors, and divers. From the rocky landscape of Capo Vaticano there is a wonderful view of the Tyrrhenian Sea and if weather permits, you can see as far as Sicily and the island of Stromboli with its active volcano.
